
How can AI augment human judgment to give you a competitive edge?

ey.com/oneedge

In today's business environment, value creation no longer unfolds as a series of disconnected moments. Strategy, transactions and transformation increasingly overlap, placing greater demands on speed, alignment and judgment.

EY-Parthenon OneEdge helps enable this continuity from idea to implementation to impact, helping teams translate insight into action quickly, with clear visibility on progress and outcomes as complexity grows.

What differentiates EY-Parthenon OneEdge is not the technology alone, but the discipline behind how it is applied. It brings human judgment, deep sector and functional experience and proven EY methods directly into the work, with AI embedded to support better decisions and execution.

Agentic AI handles repeatable analysis in the background, improving quality and consistency so you can focus on what matters most: critical thinking, collaboration and confident decision-making. Informed by curated market intelligence and decades of EY insight, EY-Parthenon OneEdge helps you spot change sooner, align faster and turn insight into action across the full value chain.

AI-powered

Drive complex decisions faster and more consistently through an AI-first platform that embeds EY-Parthenon methodologies directly into agentic workflows – so insight is delivered when you need it.

Human-led

Work side by side with EY-Parthenon practitioners in real-time in the same environment, with direct access to experienced teams who collaborate with you, apply deep experience, and steer critical decisions.

Outcome-driven

Turn data and engagement activity into sharper insight, earlier risk identification, and faster transformation – driving measurable outcomes, not just analysis.

The better the question. The better the answer.
The better the world works.

Shape the future with confidence

Strategy: from signal to conviction

Strategic decisions are increasingly shaped by constant change and fragmented signals. Leaders are surrounded by information and often struggle to separate signal from noise and turn the right insight into conviction and action at the right time.

EY-Parthenon OneEdge helps you make sense of competing signals and advances strategic work by carrying forward governed data and learning, rather than restarting analysis with each decision. By securely combining EY, client and external inputs over time, it compounds context that strengthens confidence in decisions as priorities shift.

Transactions: from diligence to decision

Transactions move quickly, but value is often lost to complexity, compressed timelines, and heavy manual effort. Deal teams are asked to assess more risk, review more information, and deliver decisions faster, often across disconnected tools and teams.

EY-Parthenon OneEdge creates a single, connected experience for transaction work, where collaboration is built in and agentic AI supports repeatable deal activities. This helps you move from open to close with greater speed, consistency and control.

Transformation: from plans to outcomes

Transformation rarely fails on ambition. It fails when momentum drops after key decisions are made, progress becomes hard to measure and accountability fades over time.

EY-Parthenon OneEdge carries learning and execution forward beyond the decision point, embedding outcome tracking, continuous improvement and change disciplines into the work. This keeps progress visible, sustains momentum and helps value be realized and strengthened over time.
