What has happened to ISG?

On 20 September 2024, certain UK trading entities of ISG (the Companies listed above) were placed in administration and Timothy Vance, Alan Michael Hudson and Dan Edkins were appointed as Joint Administrators.

The UK operations of the ISG Group ceased to trade with immediate effect.

No further work will be undertaken on any contracts in the above Companies.

Sites were closed down prior to the appointment of Administrators. With immediate effect, the management of project sites was returned to site owners. Site owners should take all necessary steps to arrange security and insurance at relevant premises.

I am a customer with works not yet started / completed – will work be restarted?

No further work will be undertaken on existing UK contracts and the UK operations of the ISG Group have ceased to trade with immediate effect.

What are the intentions regarding any customer sites where ISG were the main contractor at 20 September 2024?

As noted above, ISG ceased all operations on live projects immediately, including on Construction, Fit Out, Retail and Engineering contracts.

In this regard, the Joint Administrators do not assume any responsibility for the ongoing operation of any sites associated with a live project prior to 20 September 2024. For the avoidance of doubt, this includes any insurance or security at any respective site.

All ISG staff and contractors have been instructed not to attend any project site.

We note that many sites had contractors working on them. We understand a number of contractors will have left equipment and / or materials on sites, which they will request to retrieve.

Any such retrieval of equipment and / or materials will not be a matter for the Joint Administrators and should be arranged directly between customers and any applicable contractor.

I am a site owner and suppliers / contractors have requested access to my site to collect equipment / materials / tools – am I required to get authorisation from the Joint Administrators before releasing these assets?

Any retrieval of equipment / materials / tools will not be a matter for the Joint Administrators and should be arranged directly between customers and any applicable contractor.

The Joint Administrators are not able to take responsibility for the verification of third-party assets on project sites and therefore will be unable to grant or refuse permission for the release of third-party assets to the relevant parties.

I am a customer with an issue on a completed / part completed contract – who should I contact?

Any amounts due relating to defects or claims in respect of completed / part completed works will be treated as an unsecured claim in the respective administrations.

Please be advised that no payments are expected to be made to unsecured creditors of the Companies.

If you wish to submit a claim in the Administration of the relevant Company, please refer to the Supplier and Contractor Frequently Asked Questions under the 'Frequently Asked Questions' drop down on the Joint Administrators' website at https://www.ey.com/en_uk/administrations/isg-administrations.

What will happen if I owe an ISG company money?

Any amounts outstanding to any ISG company on 20 September 2024 will still remain due.

For any amounts outstanding, please continue to make payment to the account details you will normally use unless you are subsequently requested to use an alternative account by the Joint Administrators.

The Joint Administrator will be proactively seeking to recover any outstanding amounts due to any ISG company at the Date of Appointment.

Should you wish to contact the Joint Administrators to discuss any amounts due, please contact us at ISGAdministrations@uk.ey.com.

My question is not answered above, who should I contact regarding my query?

If you are a customer and have a query that is not answered above, please contact ISGAdministrations@uk.ey.com.
